bottle for 36s. on which 11s. are saved.

“Health is the only Riches a Man can set a Value upon; without it all Men are poor, let their Estate be what it will.”—Moore.

“Health is certainly the Riches of Life; and if Men were to derive their Rank from that alone, it would, in all probability, make them more careful to preserve it.”—Ibid.

THE various degrees and kinds of waste or decay that affect the human Body, though attended with symptoms widely different, agree very much in their basis or ground-work.

Whatever enriches the blood, without inflaming it; whatever braces, without stimulating too violently the nervous system; whatever frees and disburthens the viscera and other important organs; whatever resolves obstructions and throws off viscid strong humours; whatever strengthens the general habit and brings back the muscular fibres to their natural and healthy tone; whatever is calculated to produce in a considerable degree all or any of these effects, must under certain modifications and restrictions be equally adapted to the cure of every species of decay. Hence, though the Cordial Balm of Gilead makes a direct attack upon the many-headed hydra in one quarter only, it will be found to apply indirectly or collaterally to almost every other.

No invention has hitherto braved the utmost rage of calumny more than this inestimable Medicine. It has at length surmounted every obstacle: for cooler reason suggesting to its enemies the propriety of proving its efficacy by the test of experimental judgment, they are now compelled to acknowledge the force of its virtues. No medicine ever yet offered to the public has experienced such a large and constant sale, which alone is a sufficient testimony of its worth.

Its primary object is to relieve those persons who, by an immoderate indulgence of their passions, have ruined their constitutions, and brought on a perfect TABES DORSALIS, or in their way to the consummation of that deplorable malady, are affected with any of those previous symptoms that betray its approach, as the various affections of the nervous system, obstinate gleet, involuntary emissions, excesses, irregularity, obstruction of certain evacuations, weakness, total impotency, barrenness, &c. But the relief the Cordial Balm of Gilead generally administers, is not confined to these alone;—the valetudinarian by birth, who has received from his parents the inheritance of a diseased and unprolific frame; the delicate female, whom an immured and inactive life, together with the immoderate use of tea and other weak and watery aliments, has, without any fault of her's, brought on all the calamitous symptoms of a consumptive habit, and are without timely assistance sinking into an untimely grave;—such as these, the Cordial Balm of Gilead will restore to the enjoyment of all the comforts of life.

This remedy is statedly resorted to by the first nobility and gentry in the united kingdom, and by a multitude of habitual invalids. It is universally admired, as pleasant to the taste and smell; gently astringent to the fibres of the stomach, and giving that proper tensity which a good digestion requires. As nothing can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, so there is nothing more generally acknowledged to be peculiarly efficacious in all inward wastings, loss of appetite, indigestion, depression of spirits, trembling or shaking of the hands or limbs, shortness of breath, or consumptive habits: It possesses wonderful efficacy in nervous disorders, fits, head-aches, weaknesses, heaviness, and lowness of spirits; dimness of sight, confused thought, wandering of the mind, vapours and melancholy, and all kinds of hysteric complaints are gradually removed by its use. In sickness of the stomach, flatulencies or obstructions, it is safe and powerful: so that this balsamic Cordial may be justly enumerated amongst the foremost of those happy discoveries which medical research has procured as the blessings of the human race, and greatest counteractive to human misery—thousands at this moment in the united kingdom living to praise the day they first made trial of it.

The well-known characteristic of this medicine for promoting longevity has been long maintained; for by keeping the constitution, as it were, in continual repair, it preserves the body in health, and prevents premature decay. Constitutions relaxed, weak or decayed, are under its immediate influence. Persons who have long resided in hot climates, and are languid and relaxed in their whole system, or Gentlemen who are going to the EAST or WEST INDIES, cannot store a more important article of health and life, as it nourishes and invigorates the whole nervous system, and facilitates a speedy restoration. It gives immediate relief to those afflicted with excruciating pains in the bowels, and by a little perseverance in its use totally removes the complaint. In disorders of the stomach it has sovereign virtues, by accelerating the progress of digestion, correcting crudities, and speedily removing cholic and flatulencies.

Some, perhaps, unacquainted with the virtues of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, not having perused that interesting GUIDE* (which must be but few indeed) may be induced to ask — What is the Balm of Gilead fit for? — What complaint does it cure? To answer this, it will necessary to “ Hold up the Mirror to Nature.”

Let those who are afflicted in the following manner reflect on the CAUSE that produced such havoc upon “ the wholesome appetites and powers of life:” — Disordered stomach, dry cough, weakness in the voice, hoarseness, shortness of breath upon the least exercise, and relaxation of the whole system. Those afflicted with paleness, languor of the eyes, weakness of sight or memory, should take time to consider, as Linnæus says, that “ youth is the “ important period for framing a robust constitution,” and that “ nothing is to be dreaded so much as premature excess.” The foundation of a happy old age is a good constitution in youth: temperance and moderation at that age are passports to happy grey hairs. Nothing can be better described than in the words of Armstrong —

————— For Want of timely Care
Millions have died of medicable Wounds.

For such as these, then, this healing Balm is suitable. — Complaints arranged under the appellation of Bilious, Nervous, and Consumptive, are its proper objects.

Nothing perhaps weakens the mind so much as pernicious practices, which take possession of the whole mind and attention, and prevent their votaries from following their respective avocations, by engrossing their ideas, even when they should be employed in devotion or business, rendering them stupid, dull, and thoughtful, and destroying their vivacity, cheerfulness, and health, by bringing on consumption, weakness, barrenness, and all that dreadful train of complaints which makes them timid, whimsical, and ridiculous. The mind is agitated with frightful ideas and horrid dreams, which infinitely render them fearful of being left alone for a few minutes! Surely such a train of miseries might be sufficient to deter young people from entering into such courses! They should take time to consider, that every act of this kind strikes deep at the root of their constitution, inevitably hastens many alarming diseases, and brings on all the languishing infirmities of old age, and finally, premature dissolution.—These maladies are not only relieved, but ultimately cured, by this excellent medicine, which warms and steadies the cold and tremulous nerves, invigorates the muscular system, animates the spirits, and renovates the man.

An opinion prevails that nervous diseases are at present more common in Europe than at any former period, and that they are chiefly attributable to excess of indulgencies practised in these times of refinement and luxury. It is certainly true, that the farther we depart from simplicity and temperance in diet, and the more we sacrifice wholesome exercises to the inactivity attending domestic amusements, the greater will be the influence of every error, in diminishing the vigour of the constitution.

Diseases of the nerves are incident to both sexes, with only this difference, that in the female, from the natural delicacy of the constitution and the softer manner of life, they are in general more frequent and violent than in the male.

Weaknesses of the nervous system are often, alas! too often, occasioned by irregularities in one sex, and sensual excesses in the other. The most common symptom of this disease is a constant dread of death, which pervades with its baleful influence the whole nervous system, writhing the heart with inexpressible anguish, and exciting the most dreadful suggestions of horror and despair! To this demon have thousands fallen a sacrifice in the direful transports of its rage.

Incontrovertible Facts.

CASES AND CURES

ADDRESSED TO THE LATE DR. SOLOMON,
GILEAD-HOUSE, NEAR LIVERPOOL.

Dear Sir—An afflicted Lady, who laboured under the deepest nervous affection possible (bordering on madness) and on the eve of being sent by her friends to a house of confinement where she had been before, procured a bottle of your Cordial Balm of Gilead, and, thank the Almighty, the same has really had a wonderful effect, she being now as well as ever she was in her life.—I think it is no more than right that you should be made acquainted with the circumstance, and I shall be happy to satisfy any enquiries.—I remain, dear Sir, your's truly.

Portsmouth, 11th Feb. S. ALEXANDER, Navy Agent.

Extract of a Letter from a Lady of high Respectability, dated Darnford-street, Stonehouse, Devonshire, Dec. 19.

Sir—I beg to assure you that I have in my own person a very strong proof of the Value of your Cordial Balm of Gilead, and it will ever afford me sincere pleasure to say so.

S. E. H.

Sir—It gives me pleasure to communicate to you the great benefit I have derived from your Cordial Balm of Gilead, in a severe disorder of the nervous, bilious, and flatulent kind, with which I had been long affected. I now continue taking it, and shall always keep some in my house. Be so kind as to send me another large supply, for which you will receive the inclosed remittance. The alteration produced by your wonderful medicine, proves highly satisfactory both to myself and friends, to many of whom I have given it. I flatter myself this acknowledgment will be beneficial to the public, and you are at liberty to publish it, with reference to my friend Mr. A. BRADLEY, Middle New-street, Gough-square, London, who will satisfy the most scrupulous enquirer as to its authenticity.

November 1,

Extract of a Letter from Mr. J. B. Phillipson, Brighton.

Dear Sir — I have the supreme pleasure of stating to you the case of a remarkable cure performed by your invaluable medicine the Cordial Balm of Gilead. A Gentleman who had resided some years in the East Indies, from which climate and the abuse of spirituous liquors, his constitution was so much impaired, that on his arrival in England he was declared to be in the last stage of a Consumption. Feeling the dangerous state to which he was reduced, his friend recommended to him the Bristol Hot Wells, which he tried with many other remedies without experiencing the least good effect: but hearing the highest encomiums passed on your invaluable medicines, he was induced to try a bottle of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, from which he found so much relief that he was encouraged to a perseverance in its use, and in a short time obtained a perfect cure. During his residence at Brighton, I had the pleasure of observing the rapid change to convalescence in his constitution: and before he left he positively affirmed he felt himself in as firm a state of health as ever he was in his life, which he attributed solely to your inestimable medicine the Cordial Balm of Gilead.—I remain, dear Sir, your obedient servant, Applethwaite, near Kendal, Dec. 25.

Sir—Impressed with the restoring virtues of your highly celebrated medicine the Cordial Balm of Gilead, I feel myself bounden in justice to you, and for the benefit of the public, to inform you, that early in last spring I had a violent pain in my breast, accompanied with difficulty of breathing and excessive weakness, so that I could scarcely walk. I continued for some time labouring under the most distressing symptoms; when, seeing in the Westmorland Advertiser, an account of some cures performed in this neighbourhood by taking the said medicine, in the latter part of September I procured a Family Bottle of Messrs. M. & R. Branthwaite, your Agents, by taking of which, in two days time I felt its restorative virtues, and before I had finished the same was restored to my former health; which thank God I am now in: and remain

Your most obedient servant,

ISAAC HUTCHINSON, (aged 25 years.)

A recent and very remarkable instance of the great efficacy of Dr. Solomon's celebrated CORDIAL BALM of GILEAD, communicated by Mr. E. PIERCY, Printer and Bookseller, Birmingham.

Birmingham, Aug. 21.

Sir — I feel much satisfaction in being able to communicate to you, a recent and extraordinary case, in which the great efficacy of the Cordial Balm of Gilead was most strikingly demonstrated. A young man, about 18 years of age, an inhabitant of Kidderminster, a few miles distant from hence, having caught a violent cold, which, either from being neglected or improperly treated, settled upon his lungs, and produced alarming symptoms of a rapid decline: Under these distressing circumstances, two eminent physicians were consulted, who attended the young man for many weeks, without being able to afford him any relief. They did not hesitate to pronounce his case to be a deep and incurable Consumption; finding they could not render him any service, and to avoid putting his friends to unnecessary expence, declined their visits, assuring his relations, in their opinion, he could not survive much longer. Previous however to their taking leave of the young man, himself and his friends had expressed a wish to try your Cordial Balm of Gilead. To this the physicians consented, saying, it could do neither harm nor good, and might tend to tranquillize the young man's mind.

A family bottle was accordingly sent for, and taken without any apparent benefit. His friends, however, did not despair. They sent for a second bottle, and indulged a hope that symptoms of amendment began to appear. Thus encouraged, they continued to use the Cordial Balm of Gilead; and when five bottles were taken, the spirits, strength, and appetite of the young man were visibly and very materially improved: and by continuing the use of the Cordial Balm of Gilead a few weeks longer, he was, with God's blessing, and to the great comfort and astonishment of his family and friends, restored to perfect health.—Any further particulars may be known by applying to,

Sir, your obedient servant,

E. PIERCY.

Sir---An instance of the singular efficacy of your Cordial Balm of Gilead has fallen under my notice, which merits general publicity. A man in this neighbourhood, about the age of thirty, had the appearance of labouring under that most dangerous disease the Phthisis Pulmonalis, or Consumption. He had a considerable degree of hectic fever, profuse night-sweats, expectorated much, and was reduced to a state of extreme debility. Having had the best medical advice he could procure, without obtaining relief, he had recourse to your Cordial Balm of Gilead. For some time he perceived but little alteration; but persevering in the use of this medicine, all the unfavourable symptoms gradually abated, and he has attained a vigorous state of health.

Your's respectfully,

B. BOOTHROYD.

Pontefract, April 2.

Sir—About two years ago I laboured under a violent Nervous Complaint, attended with great Weakness and Loss of Memory; was induced to try your Cordial Balm of Gilead, which I purchased of your agent, M. & R. Branthwaite, Booksellers, in Kendal, and very soon found the happy effects which it produced by being restored to my former strength and memory. I have a wish to make this case public, but motives of delicacy prevent my name being inserted. Any person wishing to be informed of further particulars, may have ample information, and a proper address, by applying to Messrs. Branthwaite.

Lynn, Jan. 28.

Sir—I am happy in being enabled, by the following cases, to bear testimony in favour of the good effects of the Cordial Balm of Gilead.

JUSTICE NEVILLE, a young man of this town, a tailor by business, had been for a considerable length of time in a declining state, and was at last so much reduced in strength, as to be unable to walk across the room without assistance; was afterwards wholly confined to his bed, and his death expected every day by his friends. In this hopeless situation, his father was induced to make trial of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, a large bottle of which he purchased of me. After taking it only three days he found benefit, and by a regular attention to the directions, and continuance of the medicine, was at length restored to health, and is now able to attend daily to his business as formerly; it being at this time six months since he left off taking it. This is, in fact, a remarkable instance of the virtues of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, as his friends, neighbours, and myself, can certify.

A friend of mine also, who resides about six miles from Lynn, was afflicted several years with a severe nervous head-ache, for which he could find no benefit, although he had the best advice in his neighbourhood: has obtained such relief from the Cordial Balm of Gilead, that he constantly keeps a large bottle in his house; and to use his own words “he cannot live without it.”—You are at liberty to make what use you please of the above statements, as I am ready at all times to certify to their truth.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

THOMAS MILLER,
Bookseller, Lynn, Norfolk.

Shrewsbury Chronicle Office, July 1.

Sir—Among the numerous testimonies to the beneficial qualities of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, in this neighbourhood, two have come within our notice, a few days ago.

THOMAS ROBERTS, of Wilmington-Hall, Esq. in this county, mentioned that he had for some time been afflicted by ill health: he had lost his appetite, his breath was short, and his cough violent and long continued. By taking three bottles of the Balm of Gilead he was restored to health and strength. Mr. Roberts moreover said, that during the time of taking this medicine, he perceived one of his tenants, Mr. WHEATHILL, labouring under similar complaints; and by giving him only two doses, he was perfectly cured.

Another confirmation of the efficacy of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, we received from the lips of Mr. IZZARD, of Shawbury, near this town, whose complaints were somewhat similar to those of Mr. Roberts; in addition to which, however, he had an almost total stoppage in his throat, and a difficulty in breathing. Two bottles completed his cure.

§. These testimonies were unsought, and unsolicited by us, and the gentlemen now appear in perfect health.

I am, (for Mr. Wood),

Your's respectfully,

THOMAS HOWELL.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Joseph Morris, Chepstow.

Sir---I have to inform you of the following case, cured by your Cordial Balm of Gilead:

Mr. LEWIS WILLIAMS, Painter and Glazier, of the town of Brecon, in the county of Brecon, was for a very long time labouring under an extreme lowness of spirits, so much so that he was obliged to neglect a great part of his business. He went to Swansea, thinking bathing would be of service to him: but to his great concern, he found no relief. He afterwards came to Chepstow, his native place, where his mother and friends now live; he complained to me how ill he was, and appeared much dejected, saying, he thought he should never be well any more. I advised him to take your Cordial Balm of Gilead: he bought of me a five pound case: and his brother assured me, a few days ago, that he is now as well as ever he knew him, being fully satisfied that it was the Balm of Gilead only that had restored him to his usual health and spirits.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

Chepstow, Oct. 5.

JOSEPH MORRIS.

Nantwich, Sept. 13.

Sir—I feel a pleasure in communicating to you the great benefit which a Lady in the neighbourhood of this place has experienced from your Cordial Balm of Gilead:---she has informed me since her recovery, that she was in a very low and weak state for a long time, during which she applied for advice to several medical men: their prescriptions gave her not the least relief, and such was the weakened state in which she continued, that her friends despaired of her recovery. The name which your medicine, the Cordial Balm of Gilead, has acquired for its efficacy in these cases, at last determined them, as the last resource, to try of what avail it would be to her; they purchased a small bottle, and afterwards one of the large size, from which she found such immediate relief as to encourage them to send for another; this to their astonishment completely restored her to health. Some little time afterwards she paid me for the latter, and then declared that she considered herself as well as ever she was in her life. This I am ready to attest to any one who shall call upon me. I have also been frequently informed by several who have purchased it of me, of the benefit they have received from it in other cases.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

T. CRAIG.

Copy of a Letter from Messrs. Clarke & Lomax, Printers, &c.

Sir—A Gentleman of the first Respectability, who had lingered under a tedious illness eight years, having been snatched from the jaws of death by your invaluable Cordial Balm of Gilead, we consider it a duty incumbent upon us, to lose no time in informing you, that you may be enabled to publish its virtues for the sake of our afflicted fellow-creatures. You may suppose, from the length of his illness, no expence or medical aid was spared, and providentially for his numerous family of ten children, your inestimable medicine was thought of, which has happily restored him to his former state of health. Being a clerical gentleman, he wishes his name not to be published; but to remove any doubts from the minds of the afflicted, any enquiries relative thereto, will be cheerfully satisfied by, Sir, your's respectfully, Stockport, May 12.

CLARKE and LOMAX.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. J. Dingle, Bookseller, &c.

Sir—A person who had several times sent for a 10s. 6d. bottle of your Cordial Balm of Gilead, lately called on me for a bottle, and informed me, “that it had done him a wonderful deal of good. He had been gradually declining for a long time; had spent a great deal of money for advice, and found no benefit. He paid one surgeon 10*l.* another 6*l.* but all to no purpose. At the time he sent for the first bottle of your Cordial Balm of Gilead, he could not walk across his house without assistance of some one to help him—indeed he was getting worse daily. He had not taken the Gilead but a few days, agreeable to the directions, when he found himself much better. He continues taking it at this time, and from his appearance is likely to do well.” You have the man's wishes to do what you please with the above statement, which is literally as he told it me.—I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

J. DINGLE.

Bury St. Edmund's, Sept. 1.

YEOVIL, SOMERSETSHIRE.

Sir—If the increased demand for your Cordial Balm of Gilead, which I have had, be a proof of its excellence, it unquestionably is that which I have often heard it pronounced, a truly valuable medicine; and I declare that I have neither known, nor even heard of, one instance wherein it has failed to produce the desired effect; and sorry I am, that, through motives of delicacy, I am prevented from stating to you the particulars of some wonderful cases, which have been performed by it on persons who have purchased it of me; suffice it to say, that it is held in very high estimation here, and you will greatly oblige me by sending me a fresh supply of it immediately, and also of your Abstergent Lotion, and your Guide to Health.—I am, Sir, your's respectfully,

S. BARTAR.

SHIP CHARLES, OF BOSTON.

Liverpool. 18th Feb.

Dear Sir,—For the cure you performed on my brother AMOS ATWELL, accept my most sincere thanks. For several years my brother laboured under the most alarming nervous disease, which deprived him of the means of attending to his business as Captain of a vessel from Boston. He had spent considerable sums of money, and employed the best of the faculty in America to no effect. At length I advised him to come in my ship to Liverpool to consult you; he did so—and I have the satisfaction to declare he returned to his native country and friends a sound man, and continues so to this day, from taking of your Cordial Balm of Gilead only.

I am, dear Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Witness,

ZACHARIAH ATWELL.

Ralph Isaacs, silversmith, Pool-lane, Liverpool.

Mr. MATHEWS, 18, Strand, writes—A Lady was afflicted with nervous affections, and a very high inflammation of the lungs, attended with excessive coughing, which reduced her to death's door. She had the best medical advice she could procure, and Dr. Pitcairne's among others; but to no good purpose. She continued twelve months in this disordered state; went to Bristol and found no relief: for four months together she could not lie down in bed without the hazard of excessive pain or suffocation, and during that period could only rest by being propped up with pillows.—Being almost worn out with suffering, a friend advised her to buy a bottle of your Cordial Balm of Gilead; she purchased two half-guinea bottles, and found much relief by them, and then bought a £5. box, which perfectly restored her from the debilitated state of her lungs, and nervous disorder. She also added, that many of her friends, through her recommendation, had found great benefit by taking the Balm of Gilead.

JAMES VAUGHAN, Esq. (late the Banker), Park-street, Bristol, 61 years of age, acknowledges with gratitude that he received infinite benefit from seven bottles of the Cordial Balm of Gilead; having thereby been restored from an asthma, cough, violent wheezing of the lungs, strong hypochondria, lowness of spirits, great relaxation, weakness of body, restless nights and uncomfortable dreams, all which reduced him very much; he is now lusty, strong and hearty, and enjoys better health than he has experienced for these thirty-five years.

Extract of a Letter to a Merchant in Liverpool, from his Correspondent in New York. "The yellow fever has been greatly subdued in this part of the country as well as in Philadelphia, so much so, that few emigrations are likely to take place this year up the country. This fatal disease may be said to have been checked and indeed extirpated by the use of a very popular medicine imported from England, called the Cordial Balm of Gilead. An acquaintance of mine, Mr. Bach, of Pearl-street, has made a rapid fortune by the introduction of this specific remedy, which he sells as it arrives at 3 dollars a bottle. I understand the proprietor lives in your town—shall thank you to get me 400 dollars worth, and expect you can obtain an allowance from the retail price."

FROM STOCKTON-UPON-TEES.

Mr. W. WILKINSON writes—Dear Sir, It is now with the greatest pleasure I have to advise the amazing benefit received from your invaluable Cordial Balm of Gilead, viz. in December last, having caught a violent cold, which fixed on my lungs, so that I coughed both day and night, for about three weeks, at the same time taking many bottles of medicine from the Doctors at Stockton, without any relief---by straining with the cough it brought down a rupture, and greatly reduced me for want of appetite and rest, on which I purchased from Messrs. Christopher and Jennet, a bottle of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, taking three tea-spoonful three times a day, as directed, and on the third day I found my cough much abated, my appetite and rest improving, and by continuing to take the Cordial, the rupture has subsided, and I hope it will please God to continue me in health. I shall always keep a stock of your grand Cordial by me. I was 76 years old last 24th January (old style), and I thank God, I think myself better in health at present than for some years past, having been formerly troubled with the rheumatism. For the benefit of the public, and in justice to your excellent medicine, you have my free consent to publish in any paper you please this true certificate of my case and cure.

FROM BATH.

Mr. W. MEYLER, printer, declares that he has always heard the greatest encomiums of the Cordial Balm of Gilead, for the universal satisfaction it has given to those who have purchased it.

FROM BIRMINGHAM.

Mr. EDWARD FOX, Livery-street, Harper's-hill, writes as follows—Sir, I long laboured under the painful effects of indigestion, and could obtain no relief from regular medical advice. In this state I was recommended to try your Cordial Balm of Gilead; but having an objection to public medicine I resisted the idea for some time. The weakness, however, gaining on my constitution, as scarcely any sustenance remained on my stomach, I determined to give your Cordial Balm of Gilead a fair trial, and immediately sent for some to Mr. Swinney's, printer, in this town, and the consequences have fully justified the report I had of your medicine; for my spirits were soon recruited, and my appetite and digestion, after eighteen months wasting and excruciating illness, are now happily restored. As this singular case may be the means of inducing others, under similar complaints, to use the same remedy, you have full consent to make it public. Several respectable inhabitants witnessed this case.

FROM BRISTOL.

Mr. SAMUEL LOVELL writes—Dear Sir, It would be injustice to the afflicted as well as yourself, were I not to declare that I am restored from a deplorable state of debility, weakness, and the horrid train of symptoms attendant on a nervous complaint of long standing, by the Cordial Balm of Gilead. My complaint so emaciated me as to be almost incapable of performing the duty in which I was engaged (as Mate in the 'Trelawney, from this port to Jamaica, for six voyages) at sea, or at home. But happily I can now declare, that that valuable medicine of yours has restored my health, and invigorated my constitution, which had previously been impaired by great exertion and heat of climate. I can further assure you that my wife has taken the Cordial Balm of Gilead for a complaint in her stomach, attended with a variety of distressing and alarming symptoms of debility, with success: being now, thank God, perfectly free therefrom. Should this letter be deemed proper for publication, you certainly have my permission.

FROM CARLISLE.

Mr. JODDIE, of Carlisle, declares, that for a long series of years, during the whole course of his business, he never had so great a demand for any other medicine as for the Cordial Balm of Gilead.

Government Security against Counterfeits,

BESIDES A SAVING OF ONE BOTTLE IN FOUR.

The Cordial Balm of Gilead is sold in bottles, price 11s. each; or the quantity of four in one FAMILY BOTTLE for 33s. on which one 11s. bottle is saved, duty included; the stamp of which bears the proprietor's name and address in the engraving, "SAML. SOLOMON, LIVERPOOL," to imitate which is felony: and this privilege of a particular set of plates for his Stamps, has been granted to Dr. Solomon, by favour of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners of Stamp Duties, purposely to secure the public against counterfeits.—None else are genuine.

Some disorders have been many years in proceeding to such a degree of malignancy as cannot be eradicated in a few weeks; therefore it is in order to encourage steady perseverance in the use of proper means, that Dr. Solomon adopted the plan of his boxes, with three large 33s. FAMILY BOTTLES, containing the quantity of TWELVE at eleven shillings, packed up safe for the country, for a five pound bank note, by which 1l. 12s. are saved.

Patients who are desirous of advice of their individual cases, may obtain it by addressing their letters (enclosing a £1. note) to Gilead-House, near Liverpool.

Persons who do not wish to have their names known, may have their boxes directed W Z, to be left at —, till called for.

Those who wish to have the medicine immediately from Gilead-House, Liverpool, by sending the money for any quantity they think proper (and in small orders one shilling more for the box) will have them sent by such carrier as they shall appoint; and correspondents are particularly requested to maintain the same signature which they originally adopted, to obviate delay, and to facilitate a reference to the original state of the case, should it become necessary. — Orders with a draft for any sum may be sent by post, and the balance will be returned in the box, or orders with cash may be enclosed in a box or small parcel, by any of the coaches, diligences, or waggon, and will be duly attended to.

Observe the words "SAML. SOLOMON, LIVERPOOL," are printed in the Stamp affixed to all Dr. Solomon's medicines, by Government authority, imitating which is felony, and punishable with death, all others are dangerous counterfeits.
